Putting local people first

With David Kidney, government minister: 'Creating safer, cleaner, greener and stronger communities'.

We are a party fighting for the future of the next generation.

Our vision - to build on Labour's successes: we want Britain by 2015 to be even fairer, greener, more prosperous and democratic.

Our task - to shape the future around a modern progressive agenda. It is about driving forward reforms, building lasting change - and a better society - on the foundations carefully laid over the last decade.

Key Pledges

➤ Maintaining Labour's family friendly policies

By protecting the well-being of children and young people, and the health of families, and building on Surestart.

➤ Protecting the vulnerable

By developing even better protection for women and children against domestic violence and abuse.

➤ Building on Labour's preventative health care

By reducing dependency on drugs, tobacco and alcohol, and providing better sports and social amenities

➤ Combating anti-social behaviour

By supporting Labour's work on community and neighbourhood policing, and encouraging vibrant local democracy.

➤ Providing a decent future for older people

By early achievement of a National Care Service - especially for the elderly and disabled.

David Drew says

“I am totally impressed by Roxanne’s willingness to put herself forward for election. She is young but has experience beyond her years and has worked hard to demonstrate how effective she will be as an MP. I am delighted to be asked to support her and wish her well during the campaign’.”

MP for Stroud

Developing sustainable communities

Stabilising the economy

By rapid response to the banking crisis, and by using government agencies and partnerships for strategic funding to local communities.

Investing in the future

By increasing standards in education and raising the skill level, and investment in employment in newer greener industries

Creating better health and care provision

By lowering referral times for cancer patients to two weeks, and reducing hospital waiting times and lists for other health problems.
